Dr. Kaminski, you have my word that:

- I wrote this application/code myself (in accordance with the guidelines in the course policies of what's considered acceptable). Any code (longer than several lines) used here which was created by someone else or written jointly with someone else is: clearly attributed in the code's comments.
- The program code attached did actually produce the output data file which is attached.
- There was no editing of the output data file after the program produced it (except such things as font size and page-orientation).
